Your thoughtful and honest answers to the following questions are very important to the quality of teaching at Agnes Scott College. Professors use evaluation results to improve their teaching. Departments, committees, and the administration use student evaluations as one component in their reviews of a professor's teaching. Your written comments are very important. Professors do not have access to evaluations until final grades are submitted. There is no way for a professor to associate an evaluation with a specific student. The completion of this form is voluntary.
